recitation of Quran by Abderrahmane Soudais - Faqih Center for Islamic Studies "The mosque will always be the same for God but the believer will have a different mosque in his heart for each time he prays, whether he's in a local mosque, a mosque in another country or a mosque at home in his city." –

Abderrahmane Soudais. Faqih Center for Islamic Studies Abd al-Rahman Soudais (1860–1942) was an Egyptian Sufi and Quran reciter, and was among the most famous Islamic reciters, best known for his large number of followers. Soudais was born in Egypt into an Islamic family, and was educated in traditional Islamic schools. He was a direct disciple of Sheikh Abd al-Halim Mahmud al-Qasim (1817–1897), one of the most influential Sufis of his time.

His father was an important qadi (judge) in Egypt and he worked as a qadi himself from 1884 until his death in 1907. Soudais and his brother Ayid were known for being able to memorize Quranic verses and recite them in public places. Disciple of Sheikh Muhammad Abdul Wah
